

Six Major Steel Firms Arrange New Peace Talks With Union

Developments Hint Promise Of Price Hike

Washington (AP) — Prospects for avoiding a steel strike threatened for April 8 brightened considerably yesterday when major steel firms arranged new labor peace talks with CIO President Philip Murray's Steelworkers union.

Six of the industry's largest producers invited Murray and his aides to meet with them in New York beginning Monday to "attempt to work out a settlement."

The move, indicating the industry and union may be ready to quit sparring and start talking business, seemed to point to possible government decisions on the steel price situation. Top stabilization officials declined to comment.

President Truman talked for more than half an hour in late afternoon with Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson, Economic Stabilization Chief Roger L. Putnam and Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall.

None of these officials would comment, but it appeared to be a good bet their conference concerned possible steel price boosts to pay for wage increases demanded by Murray and recommended in part by the Wage Stabilization Board (WSB).

In Pittsburgh, Murray issued a statement saying the union's membership "will be fully advised as to the progress of the conference," adding:

"It is not to be assumed that the convening of the conference indicates agreement upon the issues."

"The position of the United Steelworkers has been clearly stated in its acceptance of the Wage Stabilization Board's recommendations as a basis for settlement."

The industry-union negotiations have been stalemated. In fact, all companies had recessed their separate contract talks with Murray's union, apparently awaiting a decision from Washington on steel price allowances.

Arnall was reported making a stiff fight to hold them down, fearing price hikes for steel would blow the controls lid off all along the line and lead to a new inflationary spiral.

The fact that the six big steel companies—accounting for 70 per cent of the nation's steel ingot production—were ready to sit down together with Murray indicated to many observers that they had probably gotten a verdict from the government on prices. Some government officials have estimated that $4 a ton may compensate the industry for the pay boosts.

The companies to meet with Murray and his aides Monday are U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Jones and Laughlin, Inland Steel, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube.

Arnall was represented as unworried after yesterday's development. Before seeing Truman both he and Putnam were closeted most of the day with Charles Murphy, the President's special counsel.

House Committee Bars Funds To Vatican Envoy

Washington (AP)—The House Appropriations committee yesterday voted in effect to cut off funds for any U. S. ambassador to the Vatican unless the Senate first approves such a diplomatic mission.

The vote was 19 to 17, with three committee members recorded as "present" but not voting on the controversial issue.

President Truman's proposal to send an ambassador to Vatican City has aroused a storm of Protestant opposition.

The House group, which controls the government's purse strings, took its action in adopting an amendment to the State department money bill. The committee met behind closed doors.

Rep. Rooney (D-NY), a committee member, told newsmen he will attempt to quash the amendment when the House debates the bill next week.

LoDolce Held As Fugitive From Italy

Buffalo, N. Y. (AP)—Carl G. LoDolce, accused by the Defense department of participating in the wartime, cloak and dagger slaying of an OSS major in Italy, was arrested and held without bail on a charge of being a "fugitive from the justice of Italy."

Judge John Knight of U. S. District court denied bail last night because of the "seriousness" of the case. He scheduled a hearing for Wednesday.

The former Army sergeant was taken into custody in Rochester, his home town, and brought here by U. S. marshalls.

In Pittsburgh the Italian vice-consul said he was awaiting word from his government before starting similar action against Aldo Icardi of Pittsburgh, accused of being LoDolce's accomplice.

The Italian government wants to extradite LoDolce and Icardi, a former Army lieutenant, and try them for murder in the death of Maj. William V. Holoman, leader of a U. S. Office of Strategic Services mission behind German lines in 1944.

Search Made For Bodies

Pottsville (AP)—Pumping crews yesterday drew great quantities of water from a mine pit in which five men drowned Thursday night, but experts said it was unlikely the bodies would be recovered for at least several days.

A million gallons of water, and maybe more, must be pumped from the bottom of the small independent coal shaft which was flooded by a dynamite explosion before searchers can seek the bodies.

The five men perished as they got ready to quit work for the day. The bodies may be buried under tons of muck and debris, or have been carried into other workings of the mine.

The dead: Dennis Onuscho, 36, Forrestville; Francis Lipenski, of Seltzer City; his brother, Chester, Minersville; Martin Brazenece, of Minersville; and Joseph Sodont, Minersville.

Two Children Burn To Death

Towanda, (AP)—Two children burned to death yesterday while their father was at work and their mother was at a dentist's office. Victims of the fire were James, 1, and Francis, 3, children of Mr. and Mrs. William Decker. Mrs. Decker had left them in care of Mrs. Floyd Saxon, her sister-in-law, while she kept her dental appointment.

Rep. Rooney (D-NY), a committee member, told newsmen he will attempt to quash the amendment when the House debates the bill next week.

Tax Bureau Names Two Career Men

Washington (AP)—Two career revenue officials with more than 40 years service each have been picked to head all tax offices in New York and Chicago, Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlap said last night.

Dunlap said he has nominated Clarence R. Krigbaum, for New York, and Ernest C. Wright, for Chicago, as the first of 21 district commissioners in a top-to-bottom reorganization of the Revenue service.

When the plan takes effect—probably next month in New York and Chicago—21 district commissioners selected under Civil Service standards will take over all revenue activities outside of Washington.

They will replace the present 64 politically-appointed Internal Revenue collectors, and many other independently-operating officials in the field, under a reform plan proposed by President Truman and approved by Congress.

The revamping follows a series of tax scandals in which seven collectors were fired or resigned under fire and three were indicted. About 150 lesser employees have been formed out.

The appointments of Krigbaum and Wright are subject to approval by the Civil Service commission, which announced yesterday it is investigating to see whether the nominees meet the highest Civil Service standard.

Washington (AP)—Former Assistant Revenue Commissioner Daniel A. Bolich was described yesterday as having been instrumental in ending two investigations of a wealthy liquor importer's tax returns.

In sworn testimony before House tax scandal investigators, Revenue bureau officials named Bolich as having taken an "intensive" interest in the affairs of Hyman Harvey Klein, Baltimore liquor dealer against whom the government has claims of seven million dollars for alleged unpaid taxes and penalties.

The hearing also produced a rumor that Samuel Rosenman, former aide to the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, may have had some connection with the case. But the Revenue bureau employee who mentioned the report in a letter was not present and the point was not elaborated.

Train Narrowly Misses Bus; Driver Arrested

Bethlehem (AP)—A Lehigh and New England railroad freight train yesterday came so close to hitting a school bus with a dozen children in it the engineer stopped work for the day.

Ellis J. Mackey of Bethlehem, identified by police as driver of the bus, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving. Police quoted him as saying, "One of the kids told me everything was okay."

William T. Jones, 55, of Wind Gap, the engineer, said he was so unnerfed after halting his train he had to quit for the day.

The incident occurred at the Santee's Mill crossing. The children had boarded the bus in the Camel's Hump section of Bethlehem township and were headed for the Butztown school.

The fine art of daydreaming paid off at Smithfield school yesterday.

As most parents and all teachers know, daydreaming is frowned upon in the average schoolroom. For one thing, it detracts from the appeal of the printed page.

House Plans Probe Of TV, Radio, Books

Washington (AP)—The House Rules committee yesterday approved an investigation whose ultimate aim is to raise the moral standards of radio and television programs and of books.

Rep. Gathings (D-Ark), who proposed the inquiry, told the committee he is "not trying to reform the world." But, he said, he wants to see what can be done to insure "wholesome programs on the air."

Gathings first proposed the investigation more than two years ago after a survey of six television channels in southern California for one week between the hours of 6 and 9 p.m. "when children view the programs."

He said the survey showed that in one week programs depicted 91 murders, seven stage holdups, three kidnappings, two cases of arson, two jailbreaks, one murder by explosion, and numerous cases of assault and drunkenness.

The study of books, he said, should concentrate on the 25 and 35-cent "pocket size books," many of which he contended contain immoral and indecent pictures and scurrilous reading materials.

Bomb Shatters USIS Building

Damascus, Syria (AP)—A bomb explosion shattered the United States Information Service (USIS) building here early yesterday, killing an Arab radio operator.

Fire followed the explosion, but was quickly extinguished. Windows in buildings within a 100-yard radius were smashed by the blast.

The dead man was George Dyke, a 27-year-old Arab refugee from Palestine employed by the USIS. He was the only casualty.

Police arrested several suspects.

Maine Gives Ike Margin Over Taft

(By the Associated Press)

Supporters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for president scored again yesterday, this time in Maine.

They won nine of the "down east" state's 16 delegates to the Republican national convention, to five for Sen. Robert A. Taft and two claiming neutrality. The "neutrals" were reported leaning toward Eisenhower.

The selections were made in caucuses in conjunction with a state Republican convention. The convention accepted without dissent 10 delegates nominated by congressional district caucuses. The caucuses selected six others.

In Washington, Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge (R-Mass), Eisenhower campaign manager, promptly claimed 11 of the 16 delegates were for Gen. Ike. Lodge said it was "a victory for public opinion over a powerful political machine which has been working since 1951" to win for Taft.

"This was the first time in 24 years that Maine has had an open convention in which delegates in the district caucuses did not have to vote on a slate hand picked by a state group," Lodge said in a statement.

"It was a notable and significant victory representing the will of the Republican voters in Maine."

Meanwhile, boosters of Sen. Estes Kefauver predicted that a Kefauver victory in next Tuesday's Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries may start a boom that couldn't be stopped even by President Truman.

A conviction was reported growing in the camps of both Kefauver and Sen. Robert S. Kerr—rival aspirants for the Democratic presidential nomination—that Truman has already waited too long if he hopes to name the party's nominee.

Truman will go on the air tonight with a 25-minute speech heralded as a "call to arms" to the nation's Democratic voters to support the party candidate for the presidency—whichever he may be.

Five radio networks and at least one television channel (CBS) will carry the President's speech, scheduled for 10:30 p.m., at the $100-a-plate Jefferson-Jackson day dinner in Washington.

Party leaders said they would be surprised if Truman drops even the faintest hint of his political intentions.

There was some speculation, however, that he might use the occasion to light a bonfire for the man he is reputed to have sought as his successor, Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

Senate Turns Down Effort To Give All Servicemen In Korea Extra $50 Monthly

Washington (AP)—The Senate turned down yesterday a plan to give all military personnel fighting in Korea an extra $50 a month.

Rejection came on a standing vote, in which the proposal appeared to have been beaten about two to one.

The proposal was made by Senator Long (D-La.) in an amendment to a bill pending before the Senate to provide "cost-of-living-increases" for the armed forces.

At first he proposed making the combat pay increase $100 for officers and $50 for enlisted men but later changed it to $50 for all personnel in Korea.

The "cost-of-living" bill would provide pay boosts for all persons in the armed services. That would take 471 million dollars a year, by official estimate.

Although several other amendments probably will be brought up, Senator McFarland of Arizona, the Democratic leader, said he expected the measure to pass by late Monday afternoon.

The bill before the Senate calls for an average increase of 5.6 per cent, with lower-ranking officers and enlisted men getting the greatest increases.

This compares with a flat 10 per cent boost in base pay and food and rental allowances which the House approved for everybody in the armed services.

Riot Sparked By Red Parade Kills At Least Five In Iran

Tehran, Iran, (AP)—Five or more persons were killed yesterday in a riot sparked by a parade of Communist youths who back Soviet charges that the United States is using germ warfare in Korea. About 200 were reported injured.

A 15-minute battle erupted in the heart of Tehran when a small group of bitterly anti-Communist nationalists jeered at perhaps 5,000 parading members of the Organization for Democratic Youth, a front group of the outlawed Communist Tudeh party.

The nationalists shouted: "Down with America."

The nationalists responded: "Down with Tudeh."

Fists and stones flew briskly.

Several hundred blue-clad police and 10 truck loads of soldiers were called out. Police clubs bloodied many heads. Gunfire finally broke up the battle. Police arrested a large number of the rioters and raided the Red youths' headquarters nearby.

Police announced two policemen and three of the youth group, including a girl, were killed. A youth group source declared from five to eight members of the group died in the fighting.

A check of the injured showed most were dismissed after first aid treatment. About 25 were hospitalized. Some, including a policeman, were suffering from bullet wounds.

Gen. Danish Pour, assistant police chief, said his men opened fire only after Communist youths shot at them.

Sutton Fails To Take Stand

New York (AP)—Willie (the Actor) Sutton failed to take the witness stand yesterday as his bank robbery trial neared an end.

The defense rested its case early in the afternoon on the 11th day of the trial in Queens county court.

His lawyer, George W. Herz, apparently decided not to risk a searching state cross examination into the shady record of Sutton, top bank robber of his era and a two-time prison breaker.

Moments later, the defense rested in behalf of his co-defendant, Thomas (Scup) Kling, who also failed to testify.

The two are accused of the $64,000 stickup March 9, 1950, of a Queens branch of the Manufacturers Trust Co.

A third man in the smooth robbery, John de Venuta, won a separate, later trial by turning state's evidence and testifying against Sutton and Kling.

USAF Warns Congress In Plea For Cash

Washington (AP)—Russia's expanding force of long-range atom bombers is "the most ominous threat this country has ever known," U.S. Air Force leaders told Congress in testimony made public last night.

They also said Soviet jet plane production has been four times greater than that of the United States.

Air Secretary Thomas Finletter, Chief of Staff Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg and other USAF leaders presented this grim picture to a House appropriations subcommittee. They were seeking to justify the budget request for 20 billion dollars for the Air Force in the next fiscal year. Some legislators have threatened to cut the figure.

Although the officials conceded Russia had a long lead numerically, especially in jet fighters, they insisted the quality of American planes is better.

They gave their testimony to a committee some of whose members were sharply critical of the American plane production effort. One of them, Rep. Scrivner (R-Kans.), asked:

"Where are we now? Are we tyros, or are we the productive genius that we thought we were? Is Russia such a backward nation if it can do these things? Where did they get this business and production genius in the last five or six years?"

Here are some of the things the committee was told:

One—Vandenberg: "If the (Russian) program continues as predicted, within three years most of the Soviet Air Force will be jet-powered. By this date, moreover, their total number of long-range aircraft capable of carrying atomic bombs will begin to approach ours."

Two—Undersecretary R. L. Gilpatrick—the United States is only even, not ahead of Russia in jet engines. "We have got to do all we can to keep up with them."

Three—Finletter—In Korea "we have an object lesson which should teach us not to be too complacent about the quality of our machines, and that is the excellent quality of the MIG-15, the Soviet-made fighter battling U. S. F-86 Sabres."

Four—Gilpatrick—Deliveries of warplanes are about 15 per cent behind the schedules set last year. The schedules have since been revised downward.

Five—The goal of 126 wings of modern combat planes won't be attained until December, 1955, under the new "stretch-out" program. (The original goal was 1953.)

Six—Gilpatrick—The combination piston-jet engine B-36 heavy bomber "alone has the capability to deliver atomic bombs on Russian targets." More will be bought with the funds asked for the next fiscal year. Some committee members wanted to know about reports the big bomber would be vulnerable to Soviet interceptors. Whatever the answer, it was given off the record.

Headed For Top Level

Speaker Suggests Means To Prevent Juvenile Delinquency

"There is no guaranteed cure for juvenile delinquency, but there are a dozen good preventives," a Washington, D. C. clergyman, told teachers, youth leaders, and parents from four Adventist churches in this section of the state last night at a two-day child guidance and Evangelism institute being held at the Stroudsburg Seventh-day Adventist Church, N. Second St.

"More than half of the parents in America today do not utilize one of the best of these preventives—regular attendance of the child at Sabbath and Sunday school from babyhood up," declared J. Ernest Edwards, secretary with the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Washington, D. C. Speaking at the opening session of the special council at the local church, Elder Edwards said that "Our greatest need today is for youth of principle to champion the cause of right, clean government and of worthy objectives."

This morning at 8:15, Russell R. Adams, pastor of the local Adventist church, will be the speaker at the devotional service. At 9:30 a.m. weekly Sabbath school will be held under the direction of Elder Anthony W. Kaytor, Sabbath school secretary of the East Pennsylvania Conference of Adventists, Reading. At 11 a.m. T. E. Unruh, conference president, will be the main morning speaker.

Afternoon sessions on child guidance and evangelism will begin at 2:30. The two-day council will close at 9:30 p.m. Also scheduled to participate in the program are Lynn R. Callender, conference youth leader; Edgar Bradley, music director; and Jane Stewart, flammograph expert.

In attendance are parents, youth leaders, and other members of the Stroudsburg and Easton churches with visiting members from several other churches.

This is the fifth in a series of sermons being presented each Lord's Day morning by the pastor.

Dunkelberger, Richard Shook, James Hantjils and Jacob Altenose. The pastor is preparing a class of adults who will be received into membership during the Easter season.

On Sunday afternoon, Dr. Wohlson will occupy the pulpit of St. Mark's church, Minisink Hills, in an exchange of pupils, with Rev. Richard Bergman, who will occupy the pulpit of St. John's at the vespers on Sunday at 7:30 p.m. The chancel choir will sing "If With All Your Hearts" as an offertory number and the organist will use "Adagio" as the offertory. The following men will serve as ushers for this service: Elston Arnt, Jacob Kintz II, J. A. Kitchen and Henry Buck.

All visitors engaged in the visitation for the 85th anniversary fund are to make final reports on Monday at 7:30 p.m. The work of placing the new roof on the church is nearing completion. When this is finished the work of renovating the exterior of the church and parsonage will be begun.

Rev. Blatt To Give Sermon

Rev. Frank H. Blatt, minister of Zion Evangelical and Reformed church, Stroudsburg, will speak on "A Wise Resolve," the fifth of a series of Sunday morning sermons preached during the Lenten season.

The flowers in the altar vases have been placed by Mrs. R. P. Marsh in memory of her mother. The flowers in the chancel vase have been placed by the Girls Guild in memory of Mrs. Claude Miller.

At 7:30 p.m. Rev. Blatt will continue his series of Lenten Sunday evening talks on the theme, "They Shook His Cross," speaking about "those who passed by." The male quartet composed of Walter Lecke busch, Robert Strunk, Thomas Strunk and Harry Miller will sing "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" as an offertory number.

Flowers

for good measure...

A legend relates that when God had endowed man with all the riches of mind and soul, and had surrounded him with all material comfort, he threw in the beauty and fragrance of flowers for good measure.

Few people are so hardened that they do not appreciate the grace and loveliness of an unfolding rose or a stately lily. These are not essential things; they are the "extras" which signify the abundance of God's grace.

The person who plants a flower, waters and tends it and brings it to full blossom, adds to the beauty of the world and the brightness of human life. Flowers can change an ugly spot into a place of marvellous beauty.

Some lives we know are like flowers; they brighten and beautify their environment and bless all who touch them. Religion helps to build such lives, and God makes them strong and beautiful. Their roots run deep in the soil of faith.

Go to Church on Sunday. Learn about God. Put your life in His hands and let Him direct your steps.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL...
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The Wernett Dissent

Refusal of County Auditor John Wernett to sign the 1951 audit of fiscal affairs of the County of Monroe and submission of a so-called minority report deserves a complete and exhaustive inquiry by the proper authorities.

We are concerned with the fact that Mr. Wernett has raised a great many questions concerning expenditures, methods, policies and actions dealing with taxpayers' monies.

He should be proven either right or wrong about every detail of his minority report. As an elected county official, he made his report at an open meeting of other county officials, dealing with a municipal business financed by taxpayers. The issues he raised must be resolved promptly and thoroughly.

Mr. Wernett's colleagues on the board of county auditors have approved and signed the audit. They have filed it with the clerk of the courts. They have expressed, by their action, full confidence in their report on the 1951 fiscal affairs of the county.

Who is right? Who is wrong? Before rumor and irresponsible theorizing takes over this case, proper authorities should investigate and all issues raised by the Wernett dissent.

Election Year Business

An old adage has it that because of political uncertainties, business is bad in election years. Then a later adage predicted good business for election years, because the New Deal or Fair Deal primed the pump to keep prices up and unemployment down until Election Day.

Historical statistics fail to support either adage. The Cleveland Trust Company finds that when an election year came during a long-term trend of low business activity, business stayed poor in that year, and conversely when an election year came in a long-term trend of high business activity, business stayed good in that particular year.

Since 1790, in 21 of the 40 presidential election years, economic activity was higher at the end of the year than at the beginning. In 19 of those election years, economic activity was lower at the end than at the beginning.

In most election years, the statisticians found, economic activity does seem to fall off somewhat in the second quarter of the year, whether relatively high or low. If this indicates anything it would seem to show that businessmen are more nervous about who is nominated in midsummer than about who is elected in November.

And security prices usually behave worse before the conventions than before the elections. In eight of the previous 13 presidential election years of this century, security prices went up between convention and election, in four years they stood fast and in only one year did they go down. But in the period preceding the conventions, security prices had been down in six years, up in four, and unchanged in three.

So consign to the files the old adages about what happens in the world of business when the people go to the polls. They just don't mean anything any more.

Me-Tooism
That man, Harry Truman, shows the shrewdness of the little business man who grasps a situation swiftly because he has no margin for error. On page 219 of "Mr. President" appears this excerpt from his diary:

"The nomination of Dewey last night I think will make the campaign easier—all he can do is to make a 'warmed-over' approach to the situation with which the country is faced and I don't think the country is going to take a 'warmed-over' approach."

This is an extraordinarily accurate appraisal of the 1948 election and explains, in no small measure, why he won. The more I read his book, the more I realize that Truman is generally in agreement in his judgments with the right wing of the Republican Party which has been pushed aside by a combination of so-called liberal Republicans and Wall Street bankers who have since the 1936 campaign managed to control the conventions. They have consistently been defeated by the voters.

Harry Truman, in this quoted item, says that the right-wingers—or to describe them more accurately, the Taft Republicans—described as "Me-Tooism" would not win an election. And it should not.

The party in opposition has a specific function in the United States: it is to analyze, scrutinize and criticize the policies of the administration in power with a view to having all the facts placed before the people who, in the end, will decide. This makes every Presidential election a referendum on policy.

When the two major parties agree on principal issues, the people are deprived of this opportunity; they have only to make a choice as to individuals. The substitution of personality for principle leaves the average voter with small choice. For, after all, if it makes no difference, why not leave the man in office who is there? That is why we got the third term.

When it was only a choice of personalities, Roosevelt was more attractive than Willkie, even to many Republicans. When it was a question of Truman or Dewey, too few voters felt that it made any real difference.

All this Harry Truman apparently understood the day after Thomas E. Dewey was nominated and he recorded his judgment, which turned out to be correct.

In the same book, he is noted as saying in 1948:

"If the Republicans continue to perform as they have, I don't think there is any doubt in the world but what we will win."

He must be saying the same thing right now, because what is happening in the 1952 primaries is that the non-professional politicians, who have come into the party from the New Deal and the brokerage houses of Wall Street, fail to understand that a primary is not a general election; that sound political management requires that nothing be done during the primaries which will imperil the chances of success during the general election.

In a word, as these primaries are being managed, the first during the general election is being given away. Assuming that one candidate or another—the names do not matter—is nominated at the Chicago convention, enough bitterness will have been engendered as to guarantee the victory of the opposing party. All that Harry Truman, if he runs, will need to do will be to use the arguments and quarrels of the primaries for his advantage.

Paul Hoffman, until recently head of the ECA, appointed by Harry Truman and serving under him, and now head of the Ford Foundation, which is acting like an adjunct of the State Department, is the effective manager of the Eisenhower campaign.

It is difficult to see how Paul Hoffman can oppose Truman, Acheson or Marshall on the foreign policy and its cost in lives and taxes, because he has been part of their apparatus in Europe. His job was to give away American money to European countries under the Marshall Plan. If there is to be a frank debate in this election, one of the questions to be answered is whether the Marshall Plan, ECA, has been justified, in its huge expenditures. How can Paul Hoffman fight for the Republican Party, when he would be a defendant in any criticism of the Marshall Plan and ECA? Therefore, if he is to manage the campaign, it will have to be Harry Truman called "warmed-over."

A lady in Pasadena advertised for a cook, and since the salary she offered was far above average, she was flooded with applications. She chose one applicant who wrote more like Fanny Hurst than Fannie Farmer, and notified her by card to report on Monday. Back came a note, however, that read: "I am sorry to say that a cursory analysis of your handwriting denotes character deficiencies with which I do not care to cope. Get somebody else!"

Sunday School Lesson

Scripture—Luke 1:1-4; Acts 1:2; 16:6-10; 27:27; 28:1-10; Colossians 4:14; II Timothy 4:11.

By Newman Campbell

Why do people write books? Some write text books of information because they wish to instruct others with their knowledge or to share it with others.

Some have very active imaginations and feel that what they visualize—characters, plots, scenes, etc.—will make good stories that others will read—and from which they will make money.

Still others, whose lives seem to them to have been interesting, wish to tell of their experiences. In a book, or of adventures in far-off lands among strange people, feeling the world will be interested in their wanderings and in such unfamiliar places and people.

Some write to cheer the world up with their wit and wisdom, and some write of our times so that we may, perchance, get a better look at what is going on in the world, or to instruct future generations about what occurred before they were born. That is history.

St. Luke, the physician, a fine writer, wrote to acquaint his friend, Theophilus, evidently a fellow Greek Christian, so that he might better understand the faith that he possessed.

Did you know that Luke—a Gentle who had never seen Christ—wrote more of the New Testament than any of the other writers? He wrote the Gospel According to St. Luke, and also the Acts of the Apostles—and what beautiful books they are!

He begins: "Forasmuch as many have taken in hand to set forth in order a declaration of those things which are most surely believed among us, Even as they delivered them unto us, which from the beginning were eyewitnesses, and ministers of the word; It seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write unto thee in order, most excellent Theophilus."

The Book of Acts is also addressed to Theophilus and speaks of "the former treatise" that he had written, "of all that Jesus began both to do and teach."

"Until the day in which He was taken up, after that He through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the Apostles whom He had chosen."

St. Luke was a good reporter. Doubtless he had questioned the Apostles minutely on all phases of Christ's life and works and of their association with Him. He was an extremely accurate reporter and historian.

In our last lesson we read of St. Paul's vision of the man from Macedonia who asked help for his country. Luke was with him then. The 27th chapter of Acts tells of their determination to sail to Italy, and of the great storm that they encountered—a vivid and exciting story indeed. He writes of the 14th night when their boat was being driven up and down in Adria, and about midnight the shipmen thought that they drew near to some country.

Swimming on "boards and some broken pieces of the ship," they escaped to land. When they reached shore "they knew that the island was called Melita." The "barbarous people" showed them great kindness; "they kindled a fire, and received us every one, because of the present rain, and because of the cold."

Paul gathered a bundle of sticks for the fire, and a viper "came out of the heat, and fastened on Paul's hand." The people thought Paul must be a wicked man and the viper would kill him as punishment. However, Paul shook the reptile off into the fire and was unharmed. Seeing this the barbarians decided he must be a god.

The chief man of Melita was named Publius, and his father was very ill with a fever. Paul visited him, and as he entered the room where the man lay "he prayed, and laid his hands on him, and he was healed."

After that others came who had diseases and were healed. So the castaways were loaded with honors.

In writing to the Colossians, Paul stated that Luke, the beloved physician, sent his greetings. Luke apparently was not only Paul's physician, but his constant companion, in or out of prison.

In writing his last letter to Timothy, whom he called his "beloved son," on the eve of his martyrdom, Paul says, "Only Luke is with me. Take Mark and bring him with thee: for he is profitable to me for the ministry."

The Gospel of St. Luke is called the gospel of humanity. It is also the gospel of womanhood. He gives us the story of the annunciation to Mary, of Mary's song of praise to God, her visit to Elizabeth, of Simeon's words to Mary in the temple; the story of the widow of Nain, of the ministry of the women from Galilee, of Jesus' visit to the home of Mary and Martha, and the account of the women at the crucifixion.

His is also the gospel of the world Saviour.

Memory Verse—"But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit is come upon you, and ye shall be my witnesses both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Acts 1:8.

Broadway and Elsewhere

Where are the "private eye" geniuses of deduction and detection who star in the most popular fiction on radio, television and in millions of copies of the most popular type of books of this generation?

There is $38,000 in rewards awaiting the man who can tap the murderer of Arnold Schuster, the young salesman who was assassinated after he had recognized and pointed out Willis Sutton.

The clues are, so far, not too substantial. But they offer a sounder start than do most of the laborious situations in the thought-up plots. And the sum stated above is attractive—far beyond the fee in any whodunit thriller I have read.

My experience with private detectives has been rather long and varied. I have found some geniuses in the trade. There are records of tremendous accomplishments by agencies and individual investigators. But their exploits always made sense, rarely approached the almost supernatural which we find in the imaginary lore of the day.

I never encountered any freaks such as are peppered through the wild tales of weird men who always clinch the cases against the character least likely to be guilty. With the exception of the Pinkertons, who like to raise their own operatives and executives, most of the licensed sleuths are men who have had police or Federal Bureau training, have become ingrained with methodical procedure.

One I know better than most of the chiefs of such organizations is John S. Bolan, former police commissioner of New York City, retired on a four-figure pension. His principal lieutenant is James E. Branigan, who headed the Broadway squad in Prohibition days, when I was most active around the Stern.

Their combined years in active anti-crime work sum up to long seasoning. I asked them about fiction detectives. And they turned away their faces.

They believe in every last device of science and they use the latest methods. In fact, they teach them. They established the New York Institute of Criminology, and both teach there, with laboratory facilities unique for a private agency.

The showed me through it with pride. Bolan is the dean. I addressed one of their graduating classes, every member of which has since become a private detective. These were of all races and creeds and there was a sprinkling of young women.

They had not been trained to insult and bully cops, to break into homes and rooms, to make love to incidental persons they met during investigations, to get drunk, to punch people around or to steal vital evidence.

They had learned photography, fingerprints, violet ray scrutiny, disputed document tests, shadowing, criminal law and the use of many instruments, all within the law.

Bolan is a handsome man, impeccably clad, dignified a suburbanite. Branigan is stoutish, genial, popular. He has been the president of the National Democratic Club and is a person of substance and family. His son is an assistant U. S. district attorney.

These are true private detectives, real ones.

Looking At Life

—by Erich Brandeis

Have you occasional headaches?

You may think they are caused by an upset stomach or by a hangover or by any one of a hundred other reasons.

Maybe that isn't it at all.

Your headaches may be caused by PERFECTIONISM.

At least that is what Dr. Harold G. Wolff, professor at Cornell University Medical College, thinks.

Dr. Wolff has made experiments with hundreds of headache sufferers.

This is the way a "perfectionist headache" shows itself. There is a violent swelling of the blood vessels in the head. Your head throbs like mad and all the aspirin in the world won't do it any good.

First you have to change your "psychological behavior."

You have to stop worrying about your inability to reach the perfection in your work which your nature demands.

You have to stop worrying about lack of appreciation of approval by others.

Like all psychologists, Dr. Wolff has a list of things to be trimmed in glass and mahogany. There are no old half-filled bottles in the drawers. Their secretaries are not frivolous blondes or faded spinsters suffering from unrequited love; they seem, like their employers, to be normal citizens, concentrated on their duties.

Most folks have never seen an "eye" and perhaps their notions of the breed are all twisted from reading the slop circulated about such persons.

But I'm sure it's all for the best, because never before in our history has any style of literature been so specious, and that takes in even cowboy stuff. There is some basis for period tales of bad men, rustlers, crooked sheriffs and feuds between sheepherders and cattle-raiders.

But there is none that I know of for the sort of maladjusted circus creations that began with Sherlock Holmes, a dope addict, and developed into a flock of fools, crooks, lunatics and exhibitionists washed in on the flood of 25-cent reprints with lurid come-on covers.

Wolff has an explanation for this perfection complex.

"A childhood background such as parental competition for the child's affection," he calls it.

In other words, when there is jealousy between father and mother for the child's love—in later life that may develop into headaches for the youngster when he grows up.

I give this to you only for what it may be worth to you.

In my own opinion psychologists still have a whole lot to learn.

Too many people who have an extra cough that they don't know what to do with, have turned to psychology as a means of making a living and paying for the couch.

Incidentally, speaking about psychology, one of my readers, F. A. Turner of Fairhope, Ala., seems to have a pretty good idea about the subject.

He gives me two examples. One is about some boys in Louisiana, where he spent his childhood.

One of the boys was considered the dumbest in town, another one the smartest.

The smartest boy wanted to show off before the others. So he asked the dumbest boy, "Where is New York?" "I don't know," was the answer.

He asked him about San Francisco, Chicago, New Orleans.

The other didn't know where any of them were.

"See, you are dumb," said the smart boy. "You don't even know where New Orleans is, when it is right here in our own state."

The dumb boy looked ashamed of himself. Then he asked the smart boy: "Where is Cedar Creek?" The smart boy didn't know.

"Well, by gosh, it's right over here the other side of your own parish and you don't know where it is! What's the use knowing all those far away places when you don't even know your own parish?"

The other example happened in Memphis, Tenn.

The fellows were sitting around the stove in the local lodge hall, talking about this and that.

Fritz, an old German, said (and I now use Mr. Turner's dialectic):

"Vell, boys, I see by der efening paper where Mayor Crump has issued orders for eferbody to haf der houses schreened by April Folsit."

Hollywood

—by Gene Handsaker

Hollywood—Mr. Howard Hughes, head man, RKO studio. Dear Howard: Here's an idea, offered in all sincerity:

Instead of starring Jane Russell in tedious love-plots like "The Las Vegas Story," why not a factual biography, in documentary style, of Jane herself? Call it "The Jane Russell Story."

It could trace the birth of Ernestine Jane Geraldine Russell in Memphis, Minn., June 21, 1921—her childhood and schooling in the San Fernando Valley here—her family orchestra, including her four brothers—

The school plays—her job as a doctor's receptionist—and as a photographer's model—and the photo that the agent saw and brought to you when you were casting "The Outlaw."

Why, your own studio's biography of Jane calls it "heart-warming human interest." It'd be a pip, Howard. The living portrayal of every shopgirl's dream Yours for better pictures, Gene H.

A recent suggestion here was that Hollywood "send as many stars to Korea (to entertain) as it does to the home front (to boost box office)."

Baby To The Bar!

The trial of eight-month-old du Pont baby, included among the 186 du Ponts cited by the government in anti-trust proceedings, is here-with resumed:

Prosecutor: Will the court instruct this witness to be more responsive from now on? I ask questions but all I get in reply are gurgles.

Judge: It is my impression the gurgles are more understandable than some of the questions. Proceed!

Prosecutor: Now then, when did you first get the idea of building a successful business and why did you not show any indignation?

Counsel: I object. It has not been shown that my client has ever possessed such an idea.

Prosecutor: The acquisitive attitude of the witness is sufficiently shown by the way it clutches its rattle.

Counsel: The rattle is not in evidence and besides the witness is clutching a teething ring, not a rattle.

Judge (as the child cries): I still think something is hurting the witness.

Prosecutor: If something is not hurting this du Pont and the other 185 du Ponts it is no fault of the government. I withdraw my previous question and ask this child for a statement of its net worth.

Baby: Iggle-biggle-oo-oo-oo.

Prosecutor: Does that include your holdings in General Motors and U. S. Rubber?

Counsel: I object. The witness has not been shown to have any rubber holdings.

Prosecutor: If that thing on the top of that bottle is not rubber I don't know what it is. However, I'll dismiss that and ask about the witness' total stock in

Two Held For Impersonating Police Officer

Two Monroe county men are in the county jail at Stroudsburg, charged with impersonating an officer with the additional charge of carrying a revolver without a permit against one of them. They were accused of following a guest at the Hof Brau, Delaware Water Gap, to his room at 2:40 p. m. yesterday.

The third member of the party was charged with disorderly conduct and escaped with payment of $10 fine and $3 costs.

The two in jail are: Wilfred Bollerman, 37, of Canadensis, charged with impersonating an officer and carrying firearms without a permit and Charles Martin, 29, of 917 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, charged with impersonating an officer. The third party was Arthur Heister, 30, of 44 Washington St., East Stroudsburg, charged with disorderly conduct.

According to Chief of Police Fred Decker, of the Gap, following the incident at the Hof Brau, calls were sent out for borough police and Stroudsburg State police. Pfc. Emil Weber who was on patrol, was contacted by radio and he said he came upon the trio as they were attempting a get-away. Chief Decker arriving at the scene about the same time.

The officers took the three men to the office of Justice of the Peace Joseph T. Hauser for a preliminary hearing. It was brought out that Bollinger and Martin entered the Hof Brau, and followed Norman Derck, a bridge worker at the Gap, to his room in the hotel.

Chief Decker said that Bollinger with gun in Derck's back informed him: "We are FBI agents making a checkup of your room."

Decker said the two men ran, sacked bureau drawers and the room generally then left the hotel. Nothing was taken, police said.

Outside the hotel Heister was attempting to get Bollinger's car, a 1940 coupe in operation for the getaway. However, the car stalled and the trio was taken into custody by Chief Decker and State Trooper Weber.

Other bridge workers informed Weber that Bollinger had a revolver which the State policeman took from the man. Examination of the weapon showed it was unloaded.

Chief Decker is the prosecutor in the case.

Bollerman and Martin were committed to the county jail, the justice not being allowed to fix bail on the charges.

State Trooper Weber brought the two defendants, Bollerman and Martin to the county jail at 7:40 last night. They will be held there awaiting further action of the authorities.

Beynon Loses Case Before State Court

Pittsburgh (AP) — The State Supreme court yesterday affirmed an order of the Dauphin county court quashing the nomination petition of Daniel Beynon of Scranton as a 10th district candidate for Congress in the April 22 Republican primary. An opinion will be filed later.

The county court quashed Beynon's petition on grounds it contained only 186 legal names instead of the 200 required by law. Beynon argued before the Supreme court Thursday that a court error deprived him of his rights to run for the nomination.

He said the county court had no authority to grant a rehearing in the case after the seven-day period for filing complaints against nominating petitions expired.

The decision leaves Nelson Nichols, Joseph Carrigan and Robert L. Taylor in the 10th district GOP race.

Snydersville — The 1951 coupe operated by Arthur Titlow, 70, of Bethlehem, was damaged to the extent of $100 at 4 p. m. yesterday when struck by a truck-trailer in charge of Kenneth Schweigert, 24, of Schuylkill Haven. State police of the Brodheadsville substation said last night. Mark E. Yoder, Schuylkill Haven, was owner of the truck which was empty.

Titlow came out of Route 12 on 209 at the intersection, headed toward Sciota. The truck driver moving on Route 209 in the same direction told police he was unable to stop his vehicle in time to avoid a collision. He said he swerved his machine to the left when the tires of the trailer brushed the left side of the coupe.

Mr. Titlow was able to continue operation of his car after the crash. There was no damage to the truck, no personal injuries and no arrests, police said.

Penn Stroud PENN POINTS

Last week I mentioned something about "back-of-the-house" improvements at the Penn Stroud. To the uninitiated, "back-of-the-house" means practically everything that the guest never sees... the kitchens, the laundry, the linen rooms, the repair shops and all of the other inner-workings of a hotel.

A short time ago we put the finishing touches on a "back-of-the-house" project that I'm really proud of—our kitchen. And anytime you'd like to see it, please let me know and I'll take you on an inspection tour. This new kitchen has highly glazed ceramic tiled walls right up to the ceiling and quarry-tile floors so that our night cleaner can take a hose and make the place spotlessly clean in a matter of minutes. Our kitchen equipment is all made of shiny, stainless steel and the people who work back there are proud as punch of their surroundings. Maybe that accounts for the fine food they turn out.

Seriously, we want you to see this kitchen if you haven't already been through it.

Pocono Specialty

One of the most frequently ordered items on the Penn Stroud menu is Pocono Mountain Brook Trout which is delivered to us fresh every morning from up in the hills. The tender white meat is as we prepare it, saute'd in country-fresh sweet butter, is as delicious as any fish in the world and Stroudsburgers must love it because the Penn Stroud is the largest single buyer of Pocono Mountain Brook Trout in the country. Why not try it during the Lenten season, especially.

Noontime Business Center

If your lawyer, your doctor, your grocer or your insurance man excuses himself at noon, chances are he's headed for a luncheon meeting at the Penn Stroud. Every day is a business luncheon day at the Penn Stroud. The leading civic organizations hold their get-togethers with us... the LIONS on Tuesday, KIWANIS on Wednesday and ROTARY on Thursday. It's inspirational to see how these business leaders discuss their common problems, and it's another reason why America is such a great country.

The ladies, not to be outdone, have a dinner meeting once a month of the Business and Professional Women. We're happy to entertain all of these groups.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Isn't often a story comes already told, as the Girl Scout history did—the only chore was to decide what to leave out of the history Lucy Hartman had written for the monthly "Newshag" she edits.

Anyway, it was a lot of fun digging for the pictures, some of which came accompanied by newspaper clippings of that first camp in August 1923 at Eilenberger's Landing.

Those you would have loved. Particularly about their fixing up to dance at Cleo's. Everyone of them frizzed their hair with curling irons heated over the oil lamp. Everyone except the last when the oil ran out.

Well '23 skidded or not—girls seem to stay much the same, Sunburn and sunshallow roasts, basketball songs and pied beds, garter snakes to squeal at, and giggling all the night long. It's just the knickers for sports and the black crepe-de-chine for dress that made them seem so different.

And it's a happier EASTER with American Greetings from

County Girl Scout Birthday Marks 30 Years Progress; Generations Of Leadership

Monroe County Girl Scouts are celebrating their 30th birthday at the same time that the national organization is celebrating its 40th throughout the nation, and like their parent organization have a proud record of accomplishments from the time the original troops were organized in 1922 in East Stroudsburg and Swiftwater until the present when 34 troops are active in the county.

They've had their ups and downs, however, surviving the depression, being flooded out of their camp at Deerbone two seasons, and losing all their camping equipment when thieves broke into the barn where it had been stored. The council had to relinquish its charter and the movement survived only through the efforts of Lone Troops and the Community Committee which carried on through thick and thin, successive generations of leaders.

Camps have always been their major problems confronting the Girl Scouts, and run like a tangled thread through their history. The current problem is to have Camp Treble on Mosier's Knob completed this year. The camp building, 35 by 31 feet, is being built of cinder blocks.

Through gifts of the Kiwanis club and individuals, through contributions of troops and leaders, and through untiring volunteer labor they have raised the building above a window height. There remains the task of financing the fireplace so that it will be usable both winter and summer, and completing the roof.

But if the problems remain constant so does the leadership, even unto the third generation. Mrs. Harold C. Edwards, chairman of the county council, is the daughter of Mrs. W. B. Eilenberger who was president of the Stroudsburg Civic Club which sponsored the first camps at Deerbone. Mrs. Camille Harvey, executive director, is the granddaughter of Mrs. J. B. Williams, first chairman of the Girl Scout committee and first Commissioner for the county. Mrs. Harvey is also the daughter of Mrs. A. A. Holbrook, who served on the Girl Scout committee of the East Stroudsburg Civic club when it sponsored the first county troop, and who also served as chairman of the community committee which kept the movement going during the depression 30's.

The troop in East Stroudsburg first met at the Grace Lutheran church with Miss Olive Abrams and Miss Helen Norman as camp tains. The troop was composed of ninth grade girls: Evelyn Minnich, Eleanor Glass, Ruth Price, Helen Wyckoff, Gertrude Burlingame, Catherine Smith, Margaret Currier, Gladys Courtney, Mrs. Josephine Dailey, Mildred Staples, and Louise Smiley. The troop earned enough money for a memorable two-weeks camping at Glass's bugle-lot at the island.

The East Stroudsburg Civic club sponsored the troop, then known as the "Lone Pine Troop" with Mrs. Lloyd Kintner, Mrs. A. A. Holbrook and Mrs. Frank Sibley as the hardworking committee.

The same year, Miss Esther Fisher organized a troop in Swiftwater, with military marching, hiking and outdoor activities. The first county-wide camp was held in 1924 on an island in the Delaware, named "Deerbone" by the Boy Scouts whose first camp there was arranged by Ernest Wyckoff. Miss Christ of Scranton was the professional director, and there were 50 girls camping representing troops in Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, Canadensis, Swiftwater and Bushkill.

In 1926, the first County Council was organized with the national Girl Scout President, Mrs. Birdsall Otis Edey, coming here to help set up the program. Mrs. J. B. Williams was the first commissioner and other board members included Miss Ruth Pipher, Mrs. E. H. Calkins, Miss Esther Fisher, Mrs. J. M. Wyckoff, Mrs. Frank Sibley, Mrs. J. H. Lanterman, Mrs. T. J. Breitwieser, Mrs. Lloyd Kintner, Mrs. A. A. Holbrook and Miss Laura Fabel.

The camp at Deerbone was continued under the direction of Miss Esther Fisher until 1928, when the river rose eight feet in a few hours and it was necessary to procure a fleet of motor boats to remove the Scouts camping there. The adult leaders spent some hectic and worried hours, but reports from the Girl Scouts showed them thoroughly enjoying the experience, with their only regret that they had to leave the ice cream they'd been promised for dessert.

The next year, the camp was held at Twin Lakes near Long Pond, and with great success. During the winter the second disaster broke when the tents, cots and other equipment stored in a barn near the camp was stolen or destroyed, and in the year of the big depression, the council was forced to relinquish its charter and through the thirties, the work was carried on through the community committee.

In 1937, they tried again to camp on Deerbone, but were again beset by high water. Lone troops during the 30's carried on the work with Miss Laura Fabel, the Misses Biggs, Miss Vivian Bushnell and Mrs. Arlene Curtis as leaders. In 1942, Mrs. Leland Baker was Lone Troop Consultant and the Leaders association was formed to integrate the work of the troops.

About the same time the Scouts became members of the Monroe County Welfare Federation, and at present are a Red Feather Agency of the Community Chest.

Miss Francis Davis succeeded Mrs. Baker, and Mrs. Roger Acker and Miss Kay Stahl led the Leaders association. During their administration weekend camping trips were held at Acker's Acres and the first steps toward a new council were taken.

The present Monroe County Council of Girl Scouts was organized in 1946, and under it the Girl Scouts have held three successful day camps, have purchased the Girl Scouts House and paid off four $500 bond, have maintained a complete leadership training program, and increased their troops to 34.

The completion of Camp Lloyd Treble remains their biggest problem, but with the leadership provided by the children and grandchildren of the early leaders, and the membership coming from great-grandchildren, the Girl Scout movement seems likely to endure.

Doughnuts By Thousands Made By Guild

The Women's Guild of Grace Lutheran church, East Stroudsburg, made and sold 487 dozen doughnuts or 5844 pieces of pastry on the past two consecutive Wednesdays. The kitchen was in charge of Mrs. Florence Bush, president and Mrs. Stella Nace, past-president, aided by a large staff of workers from the guild.

The demand was greater than the supply and in compliance with numerous requests for the home-made baked goods, the Guild will spend all day next Thursday filling orders. Anyone desirous of placing an order in advance should call 1151-W or 1830-R.

Program Of Local Medical Aux. Praised By State

Officers of the local auxiliary attended the annual conference of the Women's auxiliary to the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania held Thursday in the Penn Harris in Harrisburg. Mrs. Walter Caulfield, president; Mrs. T. I. Metzger, treasurer; Mrs. Horace Butler, secretary; and Mrs. William R. Levering, legislative chairman, attended the sessions.

They all sat in on the mid-year board meeting, and heard the Monroe county auxiliary hailed as doing one of the most outstanding jobs in the state on the nurse recruitment program.

Mrs. Mason S. Lawson, of Little Rock, Arkansas, second vice president of the auxiliary to the American Medical association spoke at the luncheon which followed, having come fresh from Gray Lady duty in the Arkansas disaster. Mrs. Lawson said that there are 57,774 members in the national auxiliary, and she related their work to the medical societies of the nation, state and local level.

This column is being written with nothing more in mind than a sincere desire that you will read it, and respond in keeping with the dictates of your heart. It is a column about people . . . a man, his wife and child, and the infant soon to join them; a family no larger perhaps than your own . . . but widely separated from yours in the experiences that have been endured during the past few years.

Their story is one of horror and untold misery summed up in two words that Americans have come to deplore and dread . . . "Concentration Camp." Theirs is a story of flight and pursuit, the scenes of despair being played against backgrounds in Russia and Poland. Now, through the efforts of a Monroe county minister, the Rev. Albright of Gilbert Reformed church, and the Displaced Persons Bureau, they are in the United States. A new and golden life stretches before them, but it is still not quite within their reach.

If they are to remain among us, they must have a permanent place to go. They have been offered haven on a farm in New Jersey where, in return for their labor, they will have a home in which to live, vegetables and milk for their table, and a measure of that security which we Americans often underestimate because we have for so long been able to take it for granted. Before they can go there, however, they must have some of the basic needs of homemaking . . . two mattresses, four feet six inches in width; a crib and mattress, a kitchen table, floor and table lamps, blankets, sheets, pillowcases, towels and other similar essentials.

These people do not ask elegance. They are accustomed to getting along with next to nothing. They ask only the opportunity to leave New York, where they are now being held until such time as they can begin making their own way.

As your Wyckoff Shopper I usually offer hints on what to buy. Today I am telling you a story in which there are hints on what to GIVE. If you see fit to open your heart now, as you prepare for the Easter season, I am sure you will find happiness in the gesture. If you feel you can give a blanket you very rarely use . . . a mattress that has been in your attic . . . a pair of pillow cases long idle in your linen closet they would undoubtedly be appreciated. Even a few coins toward these things will help. If you care to contact me, I'll be at Wyckoff's all day today. Or you can call Arthur Widmer of our advertising department. We'd love hearing from you.

Farrell Slight Choice Over Coatesville Five

Philadelphia (AP)—Farrell's once-beaten Steelers were established as slight favorites last night on the eve of their PIAA class "A" basketball championship game with surprising Coatesville.

The two regional titlists battle tonight at the University of Pennsylvania Palestra for the top crown in Pennsylvania public high school basketball. A sell-out crowd of 8,100 is assured.

The Steelers, boasting a 28-1 season record, arrived here by air this morning and retired to their hotel rooms. Coach Eddie McCuskey scheduled a secret practice session at the Palestra last night.

Coatesville's Red Raiders, who surprised the experts by winning the eastern title, planned to make the short drive to the Palestra just before the game. The Raiders, with a 23-3 record, scored five of their playoff victories on the same floor.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

Mike Rubish, likeable golf pro at Glen Brook Country club, is doubling in brass as greenskeeper at the club this year. Mike has a pair of blistered hands to prove that he has been hard at work since returning from North Carolina two weeks ago. Rubish recently turned down an offer to return to the pro football ranks with the Washington Redskins, where he played a couple of seasons ago. The Redskins reportedly are interested in Mike's kicking ability.

Rubish passed on word that Carl Snavely will be at the University of North Carolina as head football coach next year, despite reports to the contrary. Mike worked as an assistant under Snavely last fall. Frank Radler expects to depart for his new managerial job at Union City, Tenn., about Wednesday, April 9. The opening of spring training is scheduled to begin Monday, April 14.

John Schoonover, manager of the Pocono A. C. entry in the Blue Mountain league, is confined to bed with an attack of virus. Bob Schick, popular outfielder for the same club, is just getting around after a similar attack. Speaking of Pocono A. C. brings to mind that the directors of the local aggregation never sanctioned a game with Kunklestown, as announced recently. However, the Schoonover contingent would like to stack up against the Pocono Mountain league 1951 All-Star team, sometime during the coming campaign.

A seventh club has informed this column that it will vote against expansion of the Pocono Mountain league to 12 teams at Monday's meeting. I still find it impossible to figure out how the 12-team movement could have advanced as far as the show-down gathering that will be held at the Lake House, in Saylorsburg on Monday. For the good of the league I hope the seven clubs currently ready to vote on the expansion issue stick to their guns at the meeting.

The PIAA Board of Control will meet in the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia, today at 9 a. m. East Stroudsburg's Dr. Frank P. Maguire will be one of the major figures at the gathering. A turnout of 29 diamond hopefuls answered the first call to baseball practice at Bangor High school this week. Pocono High, a member of the Monroe County league, is scheduled to open its diamond drills on Monday.

Pat Browne, who divided his time between first base and the outfield for the Peckskill entry in the North Atlantic League in 1949, is currently doing the same thing with Columbus, O., of the class "AAA" American Association, during spring training at Albany, Ga. Browne held down an outfield post with Allentown, of the Inter-State League, in 1950. The left-handed swinger and thrower recently held down the number four hitting spot in the Columbus lineup.

"Ducks" Kwak, who played with Redders Harry Warner, at Eau Claire, Wis., of the class "C" Northern League, two years ago, is now also on the Columbus roster. Ronald Kump, right hander hurled for Lebanon, another former North Atlantic League club, twirled three scoreless innings for Allentown, against Columbus, the other day, allowing only two hits during his tour of duty. The people of Catsasauqua gave the Rough Riders a royal welcome home from Hershey last Thursday, at 12:30 a. m. to be exact, despite the loss to Coatesville.

The celebration featured a parade through town, despite the fact that ordinarily the town would be fast asleep at 12:30 a. m. Both Coach Bob Mushrush and his squad were reportedly deeply touched by the community backing. John Phillips, who held down right field for the Stroudsburg Poconos for part of the 1948 baseball season, Thursday was optioned to Buffalo, of the International League, by the Detroit Tigers. Bangor A. A. came up with the $10 needed to cover the cost of a Little League franchise for Bangor.

Wall Ties For Azalea Lead

Wilmington, N. C. (AP)—While Marty Furgol slipped to a 73, nine strokes off his record equalling first round pace, five of his pursuers passed him yesterday to tie for the halfway lead in the $10,000 Azalea Open Golf tournament.

Sharing the 36 hole lead at 136, eight under par for the 6,652-yard Cape Fear Country club course, were Doug Ford, Harrison, N. Y., winner of the Jacksonville, Fla., open earlier in the week; George Fazio, Pine Valley, N. J.; Jim Turnesa, Briarcliff, N. Y.; Joe Kirkwood Jr., Hollywood, Calif.; and Art Wall Jr., Honesdale, Pa.

These five were only one stroke ahead of another quintet as the stage was set for a rousing Saturday and Sunday windup.

Furgol, the Lemont, Ill., pro who also led last year's first round, was joined at 137 by big Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N. C., Al Besselink, up and coming pro from Chicago; Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N. Y., and Jimmy Clark, Laguna Beach, Calif. Besselink and Heafner had red hot 66s to tie with Fazio for the day's lowest score.

Castellani Gains Unanimous Nod Over Bratton

New York (AP)—Sharp-shooting "Rocky" Castellani of Luzerne, Pa., piled up a big lead and then withstood a blazing late rally by Johnny Bratton to gain an upset unanimous ten-round decision over the Chicago welterweight contender in Madison Square Garden last night. Castellani, 18 to 5 underdog, weighed 154½ to Bratton's 152½.

Bratton swept the last several rounds and three times staggered his lanky rival, but his come from behind surge came too late. The board-shouldered "Rocky," a ranking riddleweight, rocked Bratton twice during the early going and piled up a three-round margin during the first five rounds. That was too much for the hard-hitting Negro to make an upset.

Votes

The votes, all for Castellani, were: Referee Ruby Goldstein, 6-3-1; Judge Frank Forbes 5-4-1, and Judge Joe Agnello, 7-3. The Associated Press scorecard had Castellani in front, 6-4.

Castellani, a 25-year-old ex-Marine, switched styles several times during the bout to confuse the sleek Windy City lad who

Little League Reelects Officers

Date Set For Opening Of Tryout Period

Stroudsburg's Little Baseball League returned its full slate of 1951 officials to office at a meeting at the Monroe County YMCA last night, as the circuit got the ball rolling for the coming baseball campaign. The reelection of officers means that Marty Baldwin will again serve as president; Jess Haynes, vice president; Ed Lawson, treasurer, and John R. Wilson, secretary.

One of the largest groups to attend a business meeting since the formation of the Little League was present at last night's gathering, at which time it was announced that the opening dates for tryouts will be Monday, May 5, while team selections will be made by the managers on Monday, May 19.

It was decided to paint the center field fence black and get the new field in playing condition as soon as possible.

Chief Umpire

Bill Hawn was named umpire-in-chief by those attending the meeting and will be in charge of obtaining and assigning umpires for the games to be played this season.

George Graff was named to an official capacity in the league and will play a major role in guiding the financial destinies of the circuit.

The league is also currently conducting a booster campaign, to raise funds for operation of the circuit. The league reportedly needs $2,500 to pay for construction of the new Little League club. Anyone giving one dollar or more will become a member of the league and entitled to cast a vote in business matters.

Penn-Stroud Hotel, Peoples Coal Co., Stroudsburg Security Trust and the First Stroudsburg National Bank, the same teams that were in the circuit last year will be back again this season.

Harley Nevil and Foster Rough will pilot Peoples Coal Co.; Gail "Doc" Fogley and Harold Sisco will manage the Security Trust nine; Lester "Pug" Boushell and Lou Leffler will manage the Penn-Stroud club, while Russ Bergman and Harvey Possinger are at the helm of the First National Bank.

PGL Bows In Freeland Play

Freeland—Pocono Gardens Lodge bowed out of the Freeland Basketball Tournament last night, suffering a second round 73-69 defeat at the hands of Wood's Lumbermen, here on the Freeland YMCA court.

Loss Players

PGL entered the game with only five players, lost one on fouls in the third stanza and wound up the game with only three performers. Pocono Gardens was only able to hold the upper hand in the first period, falling behind to stay in the second stanza.

Both teams experienced a scare before winning their regional crowns Wednesday night.

Farrell, champion of District seven (WPIAL), previously had eliminated Westmont in the regional semi-finals while Coatesville upset Swoyersville.

The east holds a 20-12 edge in the previous state title games including nine of the last 12 contests. However, western teams have taken the title twice in the three years.

Walcott To Defend Heavyweight Title Against Charles In Philadelphia On Early June Date

Philadelphia (AP)—The return heavyweight title bout between champion Jersey Joe Walcott and challenger Ezzard Charles, which has been on-again-off-again for ten years, will be fought in the major league baseball stadium here, thus eliminating competition from that source. Another date being tossed around is June 5 when the American league features a day game between Philadelphia and Detroit.

Taylor is staging the bout in cooperation with the International Boxing club of New York. He announced yesterday that the P.A.L. also would share in the receipts. The promoter said full agreement on financial terms had been reached with the fighters, each of whom will receive 30 per cent of the gate.

Although Taylor did not disclose the date of the impending fight he said it would be in early June. A reliable report said it would be the ninth, an open date in the major league baseball schedule here, thus eliminating competition from that source. Another date being tossed around is June 5 when the American league features a day game between Philadelphia and Detroit.

Taylor is staging the bout in cooperation with the International Boxing club of New York. He announced yesterday that the P.A.L. also would share in the receipts. The promoter said full agreement on financial terms had been reached with the fighters, each of whom will receive 30 per cent of the gate.

Walcott, now past 37, will be defending the title for the first time since he won it by knocking out Charles in the seventh round at Pittsburgh last July 18. The aging champion has twice lost to Charles in title efforts. He also failed to win the crown from the now retired Joe Louis, although many boxing experts believe he actually won the first Louis battle.

Although Walcott signed an agreement with the IBC before the bout in Pittsburgh last summer to give Charles a return match within 90 days should the title change hands, the champion won an extension of six months to make appearances before youth organizations around the country.

Kansas Favored In Olympic Court Trials

By Will Grimsley

New York (AP)—If the midnight going has sounded for LaSalle's Cinderella Explorers, the brass young men from Philadelphia haven't heard it.

Kansas is coldly confident no one can stop big Clyde Lovellette. Little Springfield is feeling its giant-killing oats. St. John's is dog-tired. And the AAU teams are cocky as a bunch of bantam roosters.

This is not the latest farm report but a pre-battle diagnosis of the tight Helsinki-bent hopefuls who square off in the opening round of the Olympic basketball trials tonight here and in Kansas City.

Here's the first round schedule: At Kansas City—9 p.m. (EST), Phillips Oilers, AAU runner-up, vs. Hollywood Fibber McGees, AAU number four; 10:45 p.m., Kansas, NCAA champion, vs. Springfield (Mo.) Teachers, NAIB champion.

At New York—7:45 p.m. (EST), Peoria Caterpillars, AAU champion, vs. U.S. Air Force, AAU number three; 9:30 p.m., LaSalle, NIT champion, vs. St. John's, NCAA runner-up.

The fast, sharpshooting Kansas, with college basketball's outstanding individual performer in the six-nine Lovellette, are favored to sweep through the college half of the bracket and face either Peoria's Caterpillars or the Phillips Oilers in Tuesday's final at Madison Square Garden. Peoria and Phillips are tied 2-2 in season's competition.

Players

The Olympic team will be composed of seven players from each of the finalist squads, to be chosen by the respective team coaches.

LaSalle's candid coach, Ken Loeffler, was one, however, not ready to concede the European trip to Coach Phog Allen and his Kansas proteges, impressive winners of the NCAA crown this week at Seattle.

"If we play as we did in winning the National Invitation Tournament we have a good chance of taking St. John's and Kansas," Loeffler said.

"We expect to beat St. John's again because our men are bigger. As for Kansas, we've never been beaten by a one-man team as they seem to be with Lovellette."

At Kansas City, Coach Phog Allen of Kansas said he felt LaSalle got a big break in being given a chance to rest and the NCAA teams received "a raw deal."

"I think the tournament could have been arranged so it would have been more equitable for all participating teams," he added.

Coach Frank McGuire of St. John's, who returned early yesterday from Seattle where he saw his team bow to Kansas in the NCAA finals, said his men were "physically exhausted from travel and playing on nothing but grit."

McGuire praised Lovellette as "another George Mikan" and said there's no way to stop him.

Indians Option Lehner

Tucson, Ariz. (AP)—The Cleveland Indians yesterday optioned outfielder Paul Lehner to their Indianapolis American Association farm club.

Avalon Nips Kutztown To Win Class 'B' Basketball Honors

Allentown (AP)—Avalon High school, only unbeaten Pennsylvania Interscholastic Association basketball team, staved off an attack by Kutztown, defending champions, last night to win the class "B" championship in a tense 64-62 overtime game.

The finish had some 3,500 spectators at their seats.

Avalon had started the game as though the western Pennsylvanians were going to chase Kutztown right off the court. The eastern regional champs, however, recovered as the game progressed and Carl Wuchter sank a field goal five seconds before the end of the regulation game to gain a 60 dead-lock for Kutztown.

It was the twenty-ninth straight win for Avalon. It was sweet revenge, too, for Kutztown beat Avalon, 51-48, last year to win the State class "B" title. Kutztown also won in 1950, dropping Irwin, 48-47.

Dan Tobin paced the Avalon five. His point making efforts late in the game pulled the western Pennsylvanians through. Tobin tallied 24 points. Don Mayer, whose scoring early in the game, gave Avalon its good start, racked up 19.

Tobin scored three of the four points Avalon got in the extra period.

Avalon jumped into a quick 7-2 lead at the start of the game. Kutztown failed to score a field goal in the first 4½ minutes of play.

Television Relay To Be Demonstrated

Residents of the Stroudsburg will have their first opportunity tonight and tomorrow night to view a public demonstration of television relay in action.

The demonstration is slated to begin tonight at 6 at Eddy's drug store on the corner of Bryant St. and Park Ave. in Stroudsburg. The exhibit will end at 10 p. m. A similar showing is scheduled for Sunday night at the same time, same place.

Pocono TV Relay, Inc., 240 Lee Ave., is responsible for the public demonstration of their system, which is reported to improve television reception in all areas which are tied in by cable to the central antenna or booster tower.

According to John Michael Price, a member of the firm, three channels will be available on the two-night demonstration. These will be Channel 2 (CBS) from New York; Channel 3 (NBC) from Philadelphia and Channel 6 (ABC) also from Philadelphia.

For the purpose of the demonstration Channel 3 will be viewed on Channel 4. This conversion does away with "ghosts" and other TV bugs, according to Price.

The relay firm is now ready to begin installation of cables to homes in certain areas in the Stroudsburgs, Price said, and is making every effort to install "Street" cables on existing utility poles in as many areas as possible immediately. Both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg are to be serviced by the company.

The firm has no difficulty in obtaining materials, Price said.

SATURDAY, MARCH 29, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Not all encouraging but those who try hard and work extra will gain advantages. Be content that we usually get what we earn, deserve.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—More stimulating day than it looks on surface. Do some thinking, use play of energy, and reap rewards.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Stick to facts, construct measures, and right principles to gain lasting success and recognition. Take no wild chances. Heart interests, social life.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—With fairly strict exercise of your best efforts you can achieve some good results.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Start day with a clean slate. Study prospects thoughtfully; have proper discretion handling problems, answering questions. Good news coming!

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—A word of caution: don't start projects being either over-conservative, or too sure. Though competition is keen, you can make gains in many matters. Constancy will help.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Focus on all foolish risks, unwise emotions; look at things with rational eye, with FAITH. An agreeable persuasive manner will fare better than iron-hand methods.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio)—You haven't realized one-half of what you really can accomplish with concerted effort. Keep abreast of developments, new thoughts, true improvements.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius)—Virgo's so no. Beware of being gathered in by subtle talk, matters that seem harmless but actually pack trouble. Don't let doubt or fear hold away.

December 24 to January 23 (Capricorn)—A tendency toward fastness, or being all wrapped up in your own ideas. Check them! Today may have some buoyant, encouraging items. Be thoughtfully vigilant.

January 24 to February 23 (Aquarius)—Advice, according to your planetary chart, is to be particular of what you say, how you commit yourself, especially in money or business matters. Be on the alert.

February 24 to March 23 (Pisces)—Don't allow small interruptions to bother you, neither be annoyed by others' negligence. Personal life will progress with cooperation, kindly attitude.

YOU BORN TODAY are of Arise, vivacious, quick-minded. The mental type of keen perception, but may often lack persistence to carry plans through to completion. You have idealistic, dynamic tendencies, enthusiasm at your undertakings, and have courage of your convictions, so see to it that you follow through as determinedly.

Responsibility For Equalization Of Assessments Rests With Community

(This is the twenty-seventh in a series of articles based on actual real estate sales in boroughs and townships and the amounts at which those properties were assessed. Figures were taken from official county records).

By Leonard Randolph

In a summary of Stroudsburg real estate sales during 1951, the degree of inequality between individual assessments becomes more apparent than has previously been possible in a monthly survey.

It is possible, in the annual survey to make a comparison on the basis of market values by group as opposed to individual assessed valuations. The disparity of assessments, therefore, becomes more apparent.

In this final article on the borough, it is our purpose to follow property sales, by price groups, from the lowest sale to the highest.

Four borough properties sold for $500 each during 1951. These were assessed at $100, $250, $1,800 and $2,000 individually.

Three properties sold for $1,000. Two were assessed at $100 while the remaining property was assessed at twice that amount.

Two borough properties sold for $1,500. One was assessed at $300; the second at $200.

Two properties sold for $2,000. They were assessed at $500 and $100.

In the $2,500 category, the assessment percentage took an even larger jump. It continued to do so throughout the record of remaining sales. Two properties which sold for $2,500 were assessed at $700 and $1,000 respectively.

Three borough sales were made for $3,000. One was assessed at a low $700; one at $1,500 and one at $2,000—two-thirds of its market value.

These properties sold for $3,500 during 1951. One of these was assessed at $400 while the second had an assessed value of $650. The third property owner, however, found his property assessed at $4,000—$500 more than he had paid for it. (The transaction involved the sale of a "double" house.)

Four $5,000 properties changed hands during the year. One of these was assessed at only $1,000. Another was assessed at $1,500. A third had an assessed value of $2,500. The fourth and final property was assessed at $6,000—$1,000 more than the sale price. (The records show, however, that this was a transaction made between elements of the same family. The local assessor may have based his assessed valuation on a previous sale price or estimated market value.)

The assessments on five $6,000 properties were as follows, listed from lowest to highest evaluation: $700; $1,000 (two); $1,200 and $4,150.

Four $7,000 properties were assessed at from $1,000 to $1,700 during the year while three $7,500 properties were assessed at $1,000; $1,650 and $1,700.

Three Stroudsburg properties sold for $8,000 in 1951. These were assessed at $1,200; $1,800 and $4,100.

Four $8,500 properties were assessed at $200, $1,450; $1,800 and $2,000. Five $9,000 properties changed hands. They were assessed at $900; $1,100; $1,700; $1,750 and $2,000.

Assessment of $1,500; $1,800 and $2,100 were placed on three properties which sold for $9,500 during the year.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Seven $10,000 sales were made in 1951. Two were assessed at $850; one at $900; one at $1,200; two at $2,000 and one at $2,800.

On three $10,500 sales the assessed value ranged from $1,700 to $2,200. Three $13,500 properties were assessed at $1,400; $1,900 and $5,000.

The three $15,000 properties which changed hands during the year were assessed at $2,500; $2,800 and $3,500. Two properties which sold for only $500 more ($15,500) were each assessed at $4,000.

Three $17,000 properties, meanwhile, were assessed at $3,000; $2,400 and $5,000—two of them assessed at a lower value than either of the $15,500 properties.

In the higher price brackets it is possible to find a $20,000 property assessed at $8,000 while a $21,000 property is assessed at only $4,500; a $22,500 property assessed at only $4,100 and a $23,000 property assessed at only $1,500.

One $24,500 property was assessed at $14,300. A $25,000 property was assessed at only $300; a $40,000 property at $10,000; a $44,000 property at an unbelievably low $2,800; a $50,000 property at only $14,000 (as opposed to the $14,300 assessment on the $24,500 property) and a $55,000 property assessed at only $7,500.

Taken as a whole, Stroudsburg assessments during 1951 were more equitable than some townships in Monroe county. They were also more fair and scientific than they had been previously, due to pressure from civic-minded citizens who, in years past, have insisted upon correction of existing oversights and evil in the assessment system.

The burden of responsibility for such irregularities as have been noted during the past ten years does not rest directly upon any one person or on any one group of people. It is the responsibility of the community as a whole to see that all matters involving taxation, either direct or indirect, are conducted on an equitable basis.
